

WILL ADJOURN UNTIL MONDAY

Peace Envoys Are To Give Secretaries A Chance To Catch Up In Their Work.

PROGRESS IS VERY SLOW INDEED

Important Questions Are Left Until The Last. And May Wreck The Whole Work Of
The Present Commission.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Portland, Aug. 18.—The peace
envoys this morning announced an adjournment until Monday to give the secretaries time to catch up. The striking importance of the day's session was a suitcase filled with documents of a confidential nature, carried by the Japanese secretaries and carefully guarded. Each of the four secretaries had a black portfolio under his arm containing the records of the meetings. It is believed by the well-informed that the conference will be able to reach the Sakhalin and indemnities questions, but it is probable
the deliberations will be long after the others are settled. The envoys all show traces of the strenuous life.
The commissioners worked until two o'clock this morning and arose again
at seven.

Resume Discussion

The official announcement of the result of this morning's session by
M. Korosovitch is that the conference continued the discussion of Article II and it is not finished. The discussion will be resumed at three o'clock. Article II refers to the limitation of Russia's naval strength in the far east.

Wishes to Confer With Czar.

After article 11 (the limitation of Russia's sea power in the far east)
and article 12 (fishing rights on the Russian littoral) are disposed of today, he will favor an adjournment until Monday to hear the last word from St. Petersburg.

The pessimism is based upon the fact that no progress was made Thursday. The exchange of views at the morning session on article 9 (remuneration for the cost of the war) showed at once that the plenipotentiaries were
as far apart as the poles, and it was passed over.

Article 10 (the surrender of the interned Russian warships) was also passed—not in the opinion of one of the plenipotentiaries, because it could not have been arranged, but because,
with the shadow of the two main points in dispute hanging over the conference, both sides were cautious
and preferred to postpone it to the end.

Article 11 (limitation of sea power)
is also adjustable after modification,
and article 12 will present no difficulties. So that at night the situation was practically what it was when M.
de Witte last Saturday presented the Russian reply with its non-assensus to articles 5 and 6 (indemnity and Sakhalin.)

Hope Lies in Compromise.

The only possible chance now is

"DOVE" WAS NOT THE BROCKTON MAN

Chicago Detectives and Witnesses
Fail to Recognize G. L. Marsh
as the Man Wanted.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Brockton, Mass., Aug. 18.—Detective
Shelton and the witnesses, Stutz
and Slavin, after a conference with G. L. Marsh, announced they failed to identify him as "Mr. Dove," who is wanted in connection with the late automobile murder.

Chicago Report

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Chief of Police
Collins, when advised of the failure of the witnesses to identify Marsh in connection with the late murder,
said he could not have let the opportunity pass to solve the mystery, and that he has done his duty by investigating and will order the detective and witnesses from Chicago to give receipt to the official information
from Brockton.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT TRAVELS WEST TO VISIT SETH BULLOCK

Second Son of the President Travels
to Deadwood All Alone.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Oyster Bay, Aug. 18.—Kermit, the second son of the President, started alone for Deadwood this morning to visit Captain Seth Bullock, a ranch
friend of the President.

MORE REPORTS OF DEFEAT FOR GERMAN TROOPS IN AFRICA

Two Officers and Seventeen Native Soldiers Are Stated to Be Dead.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Zanzibar, Aug. 18.—A report reaches here that two German officers and seventeen South African soldiers were killed in an uprising of natives in German East Africa. It is also reported a bishop of the Catholic church
was murdered in the interior.

compromise—Russia to yield Sakhalin
and Japan indemnity. Neither will yield both and perhaps Japan at the final show of hands will yield neither.
M. de Witte, under the imperial instructions contained in the instructions given him before he left St. Petersburg, can agree neither to pay war
tributes nor cede a foot of Russian soil.

The sudden revival of deep pessimism was induced by the report
given out when the plenipotentiaries
returned to the hotel that no progress had been made. But to those in the inside that was not surprising. Things have gone smoothly enough, only the impasse has been reached—there had been the glint of cold steel in the conference chamber. And the few words M. de Witte said to the foreign newspaper correspondents, as usual, were not encouraging. He looked tired and said nothing had been accomplished.

Roosevelt May Solve Trouble.

No great hope was vouchsafed in the Japanese camp. "We are not bluffers," said Mr. Sato. From an authoritative source comes the impression that the situation is bad. This is coupled, however, with an expression of the hope that if it developed that
the conference was going to pieces,
President Roosevelt might again step in.

"We have heard that the president
having brought us together has washed his hands of further responsibility.
But he is resourceful. He might do something." It was said.

"What?"
"That I cannot say. We came asking only what we wanted. Our terms were moderate. The whole world thinks so. It looks bad. I say so. I believe so. But the conference may yet be saved from shipwreck."

Envoys Appeal to China.

China, at least constructively, has become a party to the negotiations.
Article 7, relating to the transfer to her of the branch of the Chinese Eastern railroad running south from Harbin, which was agreed to by the plenipotentiaries "in principle" involved,
perhaps, in the final settlement, prolonged and complicated negotiations between China and Japan and the Peking government and Russia.

Russia has agreed to surrender the road to China and give up her concession obtained in 1898, but China must assent, and assent means she must agree to remunerate the Russian government, which guaranteed the bonds
for the building of the road, in an amount hereafter to be determined.

TRAIN CARRIES BLACKS TO INJURY AND TO DEATH

Engine and Six Coaches Plunge
Through Open Draw of Bridge.
Drowning Score of Negroes.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 18.—Between twenty and thirty negroes, occupying
the first car of an Atlantic Coast Line excursion train from Kingston, N. C., to this city, were killed or injured six miles from here shortly after noon Thursday. The train, consisting of the engine and six coaches, plunged through an open draw of the bridge
at Bruce Station, the engine and one coach being completely submerged in about twelve feet of water and the second coach partly submerged.

It is difficult at this time to estimate
the number of the dead. It is believed that every person in the first car perished, none having yet been accounted for.

With the exception of the train
crew and the promoters of the excusion, all aboard were negroes. The engineer, fireman and conductor escaped.

The specific orders of the road to stop all trains at the bridge, whether
the draw is open or not, was apparently ignored. The train plunged into the abyss. Both engineer and fireman discovered the open draw too late to stop the train. The air brakes were applied, but did not work properly.

The scene following the wreck was one of indescribable horror, with the screaming of men, women and children who were drowning, struggling out of the partly submerged coach and floating in the river.

The passengers who were uninjured
immediately started to rescue those imprisoned in the cars.

OBSERVE VIRGINIA DARE ANNIVERSARY

Historical Societies of North Carolina
Celebrated in Honor of First White Native.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Norfolk, Va., August 18.—The Historical Societies of North Carolina celebrated today the anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare. The early history of North Carolina records the fact that on August 18, 1587, Eleanor Dare, daughter of Governor John White, and wife of Ananias Dare one of the governor's assistants, gave birth to a girl, the first English child
born on American soil, at Roanoke Island, N. C. The child was named Virginia Dare and on the following Sunday her birth, she was christened. Soon after her birth history says that her grandfather went back to England, and when he returned no trace of the colonists could be found.

DESIRES DIVORCE LAWS BE UNIFORM

Walter S. Logan of New York, Introduces Motion in a Legislators' Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Narragansett Pier, Aug. 18.—The convention of the Association for Promoting Uniform Legislation
opened here today. At this meeting
a new movement was introduced for
a uniform divorce law for all states.
The chief worker for this movement
is Walter S. Logan of New York.

TENDER RECEPTION TO JUDGE CASSODAY

Captain Norcross Issues Open Invitation to His Friends to Meet Him.

Chief Justice J. B. Cassoday of the state supreme court, is in the city
the guest of Captain and Mrs. Pily Norcross. Owing to the fact that Judge Cassoday will be in the city but a short time, Captain Norcross has requested that the Gazette announce that this evening all the old friends
of the Judge are cordially invited to an informal reception at his home in Forest Park between the hours of seven-thirty and ten. The invitation is extended to the members of the bar and others who knew the Judge
when he lived here, as well as the public at large. Judge Cassoday made Janesville his home for many years and doubtless many of his old friends will avail themselves of Captain Norcross' invitation to renew acquaintances. The easiest way to reach Captain Norcross' home is by the Forest Park car, getting off at the turn on Oakland avenue. The Norcross residence is on Conrad street a few doors away.

Vain Remorse.

tality from the weakness of our na-

CASSINI DISCUSSES AMERICAN FEELINGS

Arrives in St. Petersburg and Goes Immediately to Interview
the Czar.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Petersburg, August 18.—Count
Cassini, the retiring Russian Ambassador to the United States arrived here this morning from Paris. He went direct to the palace for an interview with the czar over the feeling towards Russia in the United States. The Czar was anxious to know how Witte would be received.
It is known that high officials among the Russians are puzzled and amused
at the extraordinary warmth of the Witte reception in America. Witte throughout his life, they say, has shown remarkable facility for winning a great reputation abroad. His critics insinuate that he has always played to the gallery. There is, they say, systematically a tendency abroad
to regard Witte as the greatest of Russians. Curiously, this has had the effect of making him rather suspected at home. Russians never are given to hero worship. Therefore the reported American feeling is incomprehensible. The critics ask if Americans are so easily pleased by a foreigner's smooth words of condescension. If popularity can be won so easily in the United States, they say, the American pretensions of democracy are far from genuine. The demeanor of the Japanese envoys,
which is represented to have given popular offense by its coldness, is precisely what in Russia would have won universal respect. The American reception of Witte greatly exasperates
high official circles, where he is intensely unpopular, and this is an effect which will not be regretted in America. Nevertheless, one hears rather contemptuous allusions in St.
Petersburg to American gullibility.

MOTOR BOATS RACE ON INLAND WATERS

Large Fleet Left New York City for Albany—Will Cruise on Canal
and St. Lawrence.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, August 18.—A large fleet of small motor boats left here this morning for Albany, from which place they will proceed through the Erie Canal on to the Thousand Islands in a spirited race. The start took place from the Columbia Yacht Club and while the cruise is held under the auspices of the association,
many boats belonging to outsiders
took part. Among those on the committee at Albany are J. H. McIntosh, of the Columbia Yacht Club; Morris Olynphant, of the Thousand Islands
Yacht Club, and R. C. Fischer of the New York Athletic Club.

REFUSE TO ALLOW A STEAMER TO LAND

New Orleans River Boat Cannot Touch
at Ohio Ports at All, is the Order.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Cincinnati, Aug. 18.—The steamer Shrine, direct from New Orleans and said to have yellow fever patients
aboard, was denied a landing all along the Ohio river. The health officers of this city are preparing to prevent its coming here. The steamer finally with a crew of thirty is also under the ban. At New Orleans fourteen new cases and one death was reported
up to noon.

MANY PAY HOMAGE TO THE FOUNDER OF METHODISM ON AMERICAN CONTINENT

Hundred and First Anniversary of Barbara Heck's Death
Observed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Brecksville, August 18.—The 101st anniversary of the death of Barbara Heck, the founder of Methodism on the American continent, was commemorated here today in the grove
adjoining the Blue Church burying grounds, her burial place. By the holding of a memorial service, about 500 were present and speeches were delivered by prominent Methodist ministers.

FAIRBANKS FAMILY HOLDS A REUNION

Descendants of Jonathan Fairbanks, Distinguished and Otherwise Assembl.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Philadelphia, August 18.—From all over the world descendants of Jonathan Fairbanks, founder of one of the oldest families in America, are assembling today for their third reunion, at the old historic Fairbanks homestead in Dedham, Mass., which was built of timbers brought from England by the original Fairbanks in 1630. Invitations have been sent out to more than six thousand families
who trace their lineage to the old
Puritan, by the family are Vice-president
Charles Warren Fairbanks, Secretary
of Labor and Commerce Victor A.
Metcalf, Mr. Bates, representative in Congress, Murphree of Donegal, Belfast, Ireland and many other prominent people.

TAFT EXPLAINED A MOOTED QUESTION

Would Prohibit Importation of Chinese Laborers Into This Country.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Santa Rosa, Cal., Aug. 18.—A letter received here from Congressman
De McKinley, a member of the Taft party, aboard steamer, quotes Taft
as saying in a speech at Honolulu that his attitude towards the admission of Chinese is in reality to make it hardly for the admission of Chinese laborers to this country. Secretary Taft declared, according to McKinley, the administration had no idea of admitting the Chinamen indiscriminately.

NO SHORTAGE IN CANAL FUND

Plenty Of Money To Carry The Great Panama
Water Way Through To Completion.

PAVE WAY FOR RESUMPTION SOON

Railroads Are To Be Built To Carry Away The Dirt As Fast As It Is Dug Up—More Shelter
And Food For The Men.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

New York, Aug. 18.—"It is not true that there has been any shortage of that plans for pushing the canal work
were curtailed for lack of money recently," was the statement of Theodore K. Shonts, chairman of the Panama commission.

"The question of funds has not interfered with our plans at Panama
in any way. When last the commission met to project work on the canal
there was still a surplus of about $1-300,000 which would have been left over Jan. 1st of the funds then available. Since that time this surplus has been expended in the purchase and equipment of two steamships.

"No financial difficulties that I know of have since arisen. There is, moreover, scarcely a possibility that the work could be impeded for lack of funds because the commission has the right at all times to contract against the appropriation of congress.

Railways Must Be Built.

"The order issued by the commission during its recent visit to Panama
to cease excavation on the canal was due to the fact that they must have railroads laid to carry away the dirt.
It was further issued because the employees had to have a place to live in
before they could be expected to work,
and because a good commissary was imperative.

"Finally, there was a lack of sufficient terminals, both for the railroads
and for the ocean shipping, 5,000 tons
of which lay piled up with no means of handling it.

"This is all preliminary work, which ought to have been done at the outset
of operations on the canal, but which was not done. It is not a fact, that this preparatory work will occupy a year before the actual construction of the canal can be resumed. I cannot predict the exact length of time in which the preliminaries will be finished, but it will probably be about three to four months.

"All these different lines of preliminary work are being carried on simultaneously and not one at a time."

The commission at Washington issued the following on the appropriation
for the canal work:

Issues Official Statement.

"It was officially stated at the 15th-
man canal commission that of the appropriation by congress of $10,000,000
for the construction of the canal there was on April 1 an available balance
to the credit of this appropriation of $7,426,568.

"During the month of April the expenditures from this appropriation aggregated $475,000, during May $503-
000, during June $659,000, during July $770,000 for wages, salaries, materials, supplies and equipment.

"During July there was an unusual expenditure for the purchase of two ships at $650,000 each, not included in the July expenditures above.

"During August, up to and including
the 15th, $250,000 had been expended.
This left to the balance of the appropriation on Aug. 15, $2,516,713, in addition to which each of the two disbursing officers had in hand $500,000
on that date.

"The average expenditure per month, leaving out of consideration
the purchase of these two ships, was about $650,000, and at that rate the $2,516,713 will last until early in January, which is according to the schedule fixed by Mr. Shonts on April 1."

AWFUL HORRORS FOUND IN RIVER BED

Whole Carload of Men, Women and Children Drowned Like Rats
in a Cage.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Norfolk, Aug. 18.—Divers at noon
today found a full carload of dead
men, women and children, drowned
like rats. The number of the victims will be over fifty. They say the scene at the bottom of the river is horrible. The dead are being taken out with derricks.

Early Report

Eighteen bodies, mostly negroes,
were recovered at 10 o'clock this morning from the wrecked excursion train. It is believed twelve more are in the wreckage.

MRS. GEORGE RAZOOK NOW ON WAY TO VISIT IN THE LAND OF HER NATIVITY

Will Spend Year in Syrian State—To Be in Jerusalem During Easter Holidays.

Mrs. George Razook, mother of Allie Razook, left Wednesday on a trip to her old home in Syria, where she will visit relatives. She went directly to New York City, from where she will sail for France. Landing at Havre, her journey will be continued by rail to Paris and Marseilles, sailing
from the latter place on the Mediterranean for Beirut, Syria. Going by land from there her destination will be the state Mountain Lebanon, a little independence forty-five miles from the city of Damascus, where she will visit her three brothers, all of whom are wealthy, and where three daughters reside. Her trip will consume about twenty days. She intends to spend a year in the eastern country and during the Easter holdays of 1906 will be in Jerusalem.
Mrs. Razook is sixty years old and has been in America since 1891.

SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY EMPEROR FRANZ JOSEF'S

Ruler of Austria-Hungary Among the Oldest Monarchs Now Reigning
in Europe.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Vienna, August 18.—All Austrians joined in the celebration of Emperor Franz Josef's birthday today. He is seventy-five, being one of the oldest reigning European monarchs. His Majesty received many personal calls from government officials and many telegrams of congratulation.

OCEAN GROVE THREATENS TO DO THINGS IF ASBURY PARK IS WET

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 18.—This city is voting today on the liquor question. Ocean Grove, the twin city to Asbury Park, threatens to go into the courts should Asbury go wet and prevent the carrying out of its will.
Asbury has been dry for 25 years.

TAGGART CASE DRAGS SLOWLY ALONG NOW

Reconciliation Might Be Affected if It Were Possible to Drop
the Suit.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Wooster, Aug. 18.—Taggart was called to the stand this morning and cross-examined regarding a letter to his wife. "Captain Taggart still loves
his wife and could the suit be dropped
a reconciliation might be effected," says Rev. J. J. Excell, who is in attendance at the trial daily. "I gave you my love, and you have killed it
as completely as if you had killed me," wrote Mrs. Taggart a month after their separation. "This answer is final. Do not come to me expecting me to change my mind." The letter is signed "Grace Taggart."
Judge Easton today refused to issue
an attachment for the records of Christ hospital in Cincinnati and its custodians, where Mrs. Taggart was ill during Taggart's absence in the Philippines.

"TIC TICS" VOTED TO END THE STRIKE

Great Northern Will Be All Right—Northern Pacific is Still in Doubt.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

St. Paul, Aug. 18.—As a result of a telegraph vote along the line, Pres.
Perham, president of the telegraphers,
announced the strike would be declared off today on the Great Northern, as the men favor returning to work. He said this condition is the result of an offer of higher wages.
The Northern Pacific strike is still in force.

Orders Voted

Pres. Perham has ordered a vote of the Northern Pacific telegraphers
to determine their desire whether to call the strike off or not.

DOES GRAFT PLAY IMPORTANT PART?

A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE
FROM WASHINGTON SAYS SO.

THE PETTY WAYS OF MEN

Not Real Stealing; Simply Borrowing
from the Government for Personal Use.

(From William Wolff Smith.)
Washington, D. C.—While the recent exploitation of grafting in the departments of the government is interesting and, coupled with the exposure of similar corruption in business and politics, has served a purpose by directing public attention to its existence, is it not possible that considerable more noise has been made than is justifiable? This question may be answered by a brief review of the conditions prevailing in the public service and it will be well, before condemning those against whom suspicion is now directed, to take into consideration the important fact that they are merely a part and a small part of the system which extends, it is safe to say, through every department of the government. Further, one should remember that as the departments are great business organizations they are modeled on the lines of other businesses, and it is reasonable to expect that practices prevailing in private business will be found in the departments. Theoretically, a higher standard of conduct may be set for public servants than for corporation employees and possibly it may be truthfully said that as "public office is public trust," the public service should be conducted on the whole more cleanly than would be the case of a private corporation doing the same amount of business. Yet human nature is pretty much the same and while the public service is doubtless above the average of private service of similar magnitude, there can be but a certain margin and as grafting spreads in private business it may be expected to grow in the public business in about the same proportion. Therefore, its existence in the departments should occasion no surprise, and, as it has been known so long, though perhaps not so publicly exploited, the exclamations, expostulations and explanations which follow in the wake of the recent revelations are a source of some amusement to cynical observers.

Incidentally the question arises as to what standard shall be set; shall conduct tolerated and even applauded in private life be condemned if discovered in the public service, and finally, what are "perquisites" and what is "graft"? When the public understands the situation better and considers the above more carefully it will be in a better position to cope with the evil.

To one familiar with department life it is as easy to trace the line of graft through the departments as it is for a hound to follow a scent. It is like a stream originating in a pure and limpid lake, its crystal waters finally reaching the ocean of a discolored sluggish movement of mud emptying through a dozen mouths; yet it is water from start to finish. At the door of every bureau chief stands a colored messenger. In almost every instance he smokes and appreciates the gift of a good cigar. Consequently the frequent callers who recognize this fact and occasionally remember him thus, "earn his good will." The salary of a messenger is small, usually not more than $50 per month, frequently less; he has a wife, one or two children, perhaps a more. Often he has been a tailor and accustomed to "tips" in such cases acceptable. No harm in that; this is the pure source of the stream. But a messenger has ears, he also has eyes; he can often give valuable hints; on a desk may lie certain papers a hurried inspection of which might be of great advantage in securing a contract. If such happened to be the case it is just possible that a person who would like very much to have a glance at the papers in question and who had been liberal with cigars and quiet tips, might be afforded the much-desired opportunity. A slight discoloration in the stream is now noticeable.

Inside the door are a hundred clerks, their salaries ranging from $500 to $1,500 per annum; not enough in a city like this to provide any great luxuries for a family of growing children seeking education, and affording small opportunity to accumulate anything by economy and saving. Savings banks pay and per cent is better, but the process is painfully slow. "A" is a new nine hundred dollar clerk, young and ambitious, study law or medicine at one of our excellent night schools. In his studies he needs pencils, pens, paper, ink. He begins by writing his letters on government stationery during lunch hour—only a little ink and paper. Then he has something of his own that "must be done" and he takes half an hour of time in the office when work is slack—here it is time added to ink and paper. Then he needs a tablet, some pens, a pencil; they are so small why should he not put them in his pocket and carry them away? Further down is Mr. B., with an interesting baby-sister. Mr. B. has noticed the bouncing balls made of rubber bands and thinks one would be fine for the baby. A few old bands each day—what harm if a new one slips in occasionally—and baby is pleased. Mr. C. is the division chief or may be a bureau chief. "Wear up that bottle of paste, and a bottle of ink, some blotters and a few pens," he says to his messenger, "and take them to my house, I have some work to do at home." "When you are making some more boxes," says the assistant secretary to the department carpenter, "just fix up half a dozen for me and send them up to the house; I'm going to move and they will come in handy. And, by the way, if you have any more of that cedar I wish you would make me a box of that." Do you think this is exaggerated? I know of a case where a correspondent "scooped" the country on the fact that a cabinet officer was about to resign and be appointed to the Senate, because the department carpenter showed him the pile of boxes he was making for the head of the department.

Now, in this particular case, where is the line to be drawn between the clerk who takes a pencil, a pad of paper or a few pens and the head of the department who gets fifty or a hundred dollars worth of boxes? Does it fall just at the desk of the bureau chief who takes his in "bottles" or immediately behind the messenger who takes cigars and tips?

Mr. D. is an eighteen hundred dollar clerk who sometimes handles important papers. One day he mentions to a friend that from a paper passing through his hands that day he knows the department is about to make a decision which will not be made public for some days. The friend is a stock broker and knows the effect of the decision will be to make a certain stock go up. He accordingly makes a quick turn, realizes a handsome profit and the clerk gets a good dinner.

Another case, more important, is pending. "If you can find out how that case is to be decided and let me know I will take five hundred shares and 'carry' fifty for you," says the friend. "The clerk does so and by a 'fortunate speculation' adds several hundred dollars to his slim bank account. Later he reappears as a bureau chief about to make a decision; one way a stock will go up, another down. By this time he has accumulated some money of his own; an investment with his old friend or through other brokers, if he wishes to be extra cautious, the decision is made and he pockets a large gain. Can this be done? Witness the case of Holmes who first sold information and then manipulated statistics to suit.

The man who gives the messenger a cigar hands a box to the chief and sends a thousand to the home of some one "higher up." "Jim," he says to the clerk, "here's a fountain pen a friend gave me yesterday. You can have it if you want it." To the chief he says, "Permit me, as a slight token of my esteem to send you one of our latest designs in desks. I have a half dozen of 'samples' on hand and I won't pay to return them to the factory." The next day the chief is delighted to receive the latest thing in desk-work desks, and conveniently forgets that the giver's company has just received or is bidding for a contract to supply the department with similar desks.

Mr. Jones is the Washington agent of a corporation furnishing supplies to the government; he invites Mr. Smith, a clerk in that bureau, to lunch. Mr. Moneybags is the president of the corporation. He invites Mr. and Mrs. Assistant Secretary to spend a week at his "little place" at Bar Harbor. One man seeks a contract for hypesetting machines and entertains certain employees at his house with "ice cream and cake" another building war vessel charters a special train or a boat and entertains a hundred officials and "their sisters, their cousins and their aunts" at the launching. A clerk in the Agricultural Department recently took into himself a wife. He arranged it so he had "business for the Department" at the same time which called him out of the city and his bride accompanied him. It is said that "two can live as cheaply as one" and it is charged that Mr. Clerk undertook to prove this at the expense of the government. If the charge is proven he is likely to lose his job. Meanwhile the heads of various departments are cruising hither and yon on everything belonging to the government from a revenue cutter to a warship. Not so long ago but Mr. Cleveland remembers it, there was a great to do because he used a tender on a shooting trip; President Roosevelt has one of the finest private yachts in the world which is used indiscriminately by himself and family, while the Dolphin is at the disposal of the Cabinet. True, they pay for the food consumed on these trips, but probably the clerk's ride home bought his own cigars, and Secretary Taft is piloting a large party, including Miss Roosevelt to Manila and back, all expenses of which "except food" are being paid by the Philippine treasury. Other officials are junketing about this country and Europe singly, in pairs and in groups. How far does their case differ from that of the clerk who is credited with taking a bridal trip at government expense?

How do all these differ from the methods of private business, if at all? If a buyer visits New York he is entertained by those seeking his custom; if a drummer visits a town he entertains the merchants. The entertainment varies only according to the business to be transacted, the possible sale of a few hats being worth only a cigar or a drink, while the chance of securing an order for a hundred thousand tons of steel rails would justify a much heavier investment. So it is when trying to sell typewriters or battleships to the government. The directors of a company intend to increase the dividends and buy stock in advance; knowledge of their intentions is bought by stock brokers. The government is about to issue a crop report which will send cotton up or down; information of the same is used for speculative purposes by government employees. A corporation is about to extend its plant and officials quietly buy up the desired ground which they later turn over to the corporation at a handsome profit; a government employee has similar information as to the government's purposes and does likewise. In private life an employee makes an invention and sells it to a corporation for much money; in the government an agriculturalist discovers a new fertilizer and attempts to hold stock in a company manufacturing it and loses his head. Yet if the story is true an army officer made an improvement to a gun which needed him enough to erect a large building which he promptly rented to the War Department which had purchased the guns. A final instance. Some officials in the Geological Survey became interested in a mining paper, owning stock in it and writing for it. When this fact became public property there was a scurry to get out of their investment, yet not long ago the editor of one great newspaper sat in the Cabinet, a proprietor is now Ambassador to England and probably half the employees of the government in responsible positions are writing for periodicals technical and otherwise on matters coming under their attention in their capacity as public officials. May not an underlying have as keen a sense of honor in such matters as those higher up? This reminds me of an amusing incident of this character. Not long ago an employee engaged with many others in making an important investigation into a trust, prepared an elaborate article for the press in which he proved beyond a doubt that the investigation was most thorough and the report of the chief inspector completely justified. About the time the article appeared, however, the writer lost his position. His next contribution—it appeared in the same paper—was an earnest inquiry as to whether trusts did not "own the Capitol."

Where does all this lead? Nowhere in particular, but the above may justify the observation that it will be difficult indeed to draw the line between graft and perquisites, between what a high official may legitimately take at government expense and for what a subordinate shall incur dismissal and also that as long as such methods are countenanced in private business they may reasonably be expected to permeate the public service. One reform can be suggested and that is that public officials be prohibited from writing for private publications articles dealing with any matters coming before them in their public capacity, or sharing in the proceeds of such articles when prepared by others from information furnished by them.

MILTON NINE BEATEN BY EAGLES' PLAYERS

By the Score of 8 to 4 in a Game
Played at Lake Koshkonong Yesterday.

By the score of 8 to 4 the Janesville Eagles' baseball team defeated the Milton Junction Crescents in a game played for the edification of the Woodmen picnicers on the shores of Lake Koshkonong yesterday afternoon. Cal Broughton caught for the Crescents and Miller was in the box. But even this combination failed to secure a victory for the Miltonites. Hallett was in the box for Janesville and Hall was behind the batter's plate. Hell was at short, James Connors at third, Herman Buggs on second, Ward at first, and Dunwiddie, Hutchinson, and Foley in the garden. The odds offered before the game started favored the Crescents 10 to 2.

GARDEN PARTY FOR GLADYS NICHOLSON

Who Is To Wed Frank Hagen of Houston, Texas, on September
Seventh.

In honor of Miss Gladys Nicholson who is to wed Frank Hagen of Houston, Texas, on September 7, the Misses Helen and Maude McDonald and Grace Conroy entertained last evening at a garden party, given at the McDonald home on East Milwaukee street. The grounds were illuminated with Chinese lanterns and a three-course luncheon was served for the eighteen guests at a table beautifully decorated with ferns and cut flowers. An original poem composed in honor of the occasion was read by Miss Kittie Blunk and toasts to the bride-to-be were offered by the Misses Maude McDonald and Alice Cilliers. All of the participants enjoyed a delightful time.

WISCONSIN STATE FAIR.

The Dates Are Sept. 11 to 15—To Be a Monster Event.

The Wisconsin State Fair will be held at Milwaukee Sept. 11-15, opening on Monday and closing the following Saturday. It is safe to say that it will be the greatest Fair ever held in the state of Wisconsin. The State Board of Agriculture has been exerting its utmost efforts to make the Fair of 1906 superior to any fair that has been held, and with the strong list of attractions, they have reason to believe that all previous fairs in this state or in this part of the country will be excelled.

The racing purses are larger than ever before, aggregating $28,000, and including two purses of $5,000 each and two of $2,500 each. Many improvements are being made to the grounds, including the erection of the mammoth stock judging amphitheatre, which is to be used in the day time for stock judging events and in the evening for entertainment features. The building will be formally dedicated on the opening day of the Fair. Besides the educational features of the Fair, which will be greater in number and more complete than ever before, there will be a great variety of entertainment features, all of which have been secured at a large expense and with the greatest possible care. In fact, the Wisconsin State Fair this year will be one of the most important educational events from an agricultural point of view and also an event full of entertainment for the hundreds of thousands of visitors who will attend.

There will be special rates on all the railroads and everyone should make his plans ahead to attend the Fair the week of September 11-15.

WHERE ARMOUR CAR LINES LOSE

MUCH ICE, EXPENSIVE IN SOUTH
PARTED WITH VARIOUSLY.

SUFFER BY CROP FAILURES

Ice, Shipped to Peach Growing Lands
When Yield Was Short,
Given to Poor.

(By William Wolff Smith.)
Every now and then a commission merchant with a statistical turn of mind takes a pencil and does some figuring on the cost of getting a car of peaches, cantaloupes or oranges from the grower to the market. He estimates it takes so many tons of ice to properly refrigerate the cars; ice costs so much per ton at the iced points delivered in the bunkers of the car; so many tons at so much per ton amounts to a certain sum per car. He compares this amount with the charges made for refrigeration and is astounded to find the latter is, perhaps, almost double the cost of the service as he has calculated it. An agonized shriek against the exactions of the refrigerator car companies is the natural sequence.

Difficulties This Season
Some interest therefore may be excited by information recently received from "inside sources" as to the operations of the refrigerator car lines of the country during the present season, which tend to cast some light on the situation as viewed by the car company. There is but one great company, as everybody who reads the magazines knows, which makes a specialty of this business and that is the Armour Refrigerator Car Lines, with some six thousand refrigerator cars designed for and exclusively engaged in the transportation of fruit. It has plenty of capital, but being the largest of all it may be properly termed an octopus and if its tentacles should be injured who would care? Consequently it may be worth while to note a few of the difficulties it has encountered this season.

Over-Supply a Loss
Some years ago the Armour lines, in common with everyone else, anticipated a large crop of Georgia peaches. Ice was stored in great quantities in houses conveniently located to be used in refrigerating the fruit in transit. The crop failed and the ice melted under the summer sun. The car line pocketed the loss and refilled the houses. Another season, probably the next, several of the ice-houses burned. It was a critical time for the season was advanced and the ice must be had at any cost or the fruit being shipped would be ruined and under its contracts with the railroads, the company would be responsible for all damages. At such a time desperate measures were resorted to and ten trains full loaded with ice were rushed at express speed from the lakes to the south and what ice did not melt in transit preserved the fruit on its onward journey. The fruit was saved, the charges were the same as ever, and the car company charged up the additional expense to profit and loss.

Frost Kills Shipments
Florida is now raising early lettuce and it is to the interest of the refrigerator car company to cooperate with the grower on the principle that better rates and facilities means the raising of more lettuce and more shipments for the cars. By this cooperation a pretty little business has been built up in certain sections to the mutual profit of the company and the growers. While congress had the matter of railroad rate legislation before it last session they were shipping twenty-five cars of Florida lettuce per diem. One night the Florida thermometers dropped below freezing and the next day the shipments ceased. Until they were resumed some three weeks later, the refrigerator cars rested quietly in railroad yards, earning nothing. Twenty-five carloads of shipments per day mean at least two hundred cars in motion, so the loss was not small.

In the spring the Carolina growers of North Carolina, according to the reports, were "ruined" because the car company did not supply sufficient cars for the crop. As a matter of fact the company had the cars but the railroads were congested with freight and they could not be moved sufficiently fast. Hundreds of cars

By lacking two votes the necessary majority, the Hall bill in the Georgia Legislature, prohibiting the giving of free railroad passes has been defeated. There was a hard fight over the measure, and the narrow margin by which it was lost caused Representative Hall to give notice that he would move a reconsideration.

In the three months ended with June 30 last the voluntary relief department of the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh distributed $114,712 in death and disability benefits. Of this, accidental deaths consumed $19,500; deaths from other causes, $26,500; disability accident benefits, $24,870; and sickness benefits, $33,842. Outstanding orders, unpaid benefits and cases continued at the end of the quarter are placed at $85,761, and after this deduction there remains on hand a surplus of $245,361.

The mere fact that a fire started from a spark is not alone considered sufficient in Virginia to justify an interference that the fire originated on the railroad's right of way. In that state a railroad company is not ordinarily to be held liable, says the court, for fires caused by sparks from locomotives when the latter are equipped with the best known appliances to prevent the escape of sparks, when they are kept in good repair, and when the right of way is kept clear of combustible material (Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company vs. Warkins 51 S. E. Rep. 172.)

Facts for the Settler Regarding Cost and Profit of Farming in Western Canada.

In presenting the subject we have to deal with in which prospective settlers and investors are most interested, and in order to answer the questions as to cost and profit from grain growing in western Canada, we copy the following table given out by the manager of the Government Experiment Farm, carefully prepared after years of experience in the cost of producing one acre of wheat, which in this case is $9.61. REMEMBER that these figures are based upon hiring all the work done in connection with the farm. If the settler performs the labor himself then the only outlay in cash would be for seed, twine and threshing, in which case he would save nearly two-thirds of the cost of production. We have based our figures on an average yield of 35 bushels per acre (which is less than the average for the past 12 years) at a price of only 75c per bushel.

COST OF PRODUCTION OF ONE ACRE OF WHEAT.

Breaking the prairie sod.....	$3.00
Harrowing.....	.20
Seed wheat, 1 1/4 bushels at $1.00 per bushel.....	1.25
Seeding.....	.25
Cutting, binding, including twine.....	1.25
Shocking.....	.25
Threshing at 6c per bushel.....	2.10
Hauling to market, 20c per bu.....	.70
Interest on $10—cost of one acre of land.....	.60
One year's taxes on one acre of land.....	.04
Total cost of production one acre.....	$9.64
35 bushels of wheat per acre at 75c.....	$26.25
Net profit per acre.....	$16.61

The cost of production the second year will be reduced to $7.99 per acre, inasmuch as second plowing can be done for $1.25 per acre instead of $3.00 for sod breaking.

The above figures extended over 640 acres will give the following remarkable result:
640 acres, 35 bushels per acre being 22,400 bushels, at 75c per bushel.....$16,800.00

Cost of production at $9.64 per acre.....6,169.60

One year's net profit.....$10,630.40

Original cost of land $10 per acre.....6,400.00

Leaving a net profit of.....$4,230.40

The land has paid for itself. You have your $6,400, the cost of the land, returned to you, all expense of farming paid and a clear gain of $4,230.40. The land is now under a high state of cultivation and worth $15 per acre or $9,600. Join the crowd and go up with us. Excursion every Thursday. Call or write us. Both phones.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH IOWA?

The state census just completed shows that the state of Iowa has lost 15,000 in population during the last five years. This is the state that Governor La Follette has been holding up as a model.

The Chicago Tribune attempts to account for the shrinkage by errors in the work of enumerators, but this is not at all likely. The population of Iowa is largely composed of farmers and any intelligent school boy would be able to list them correctly.

The largest city in the state is Des Moines, with a population of 22,000, and all the cities in the state contain less than half a million people.

There is something radically wrong with Iowa, and the wrong is so apparent that it is not difficult to discover. The farming lands of the state are as rich as a garden and the whole area has been under cultivation for the past 25 years.

There are no more farmers in the state than there were ten years ago and this class of population has reached the limit for all time to come.

The growth of any well developed state does not come from the agricultural districts. The tendency rather is towards decrease, as the work of the farm has been so revolutionized by improved machinery that labor is reduced to the minimum.

The only hope for growth is in the cities, and the people of Iowa said 25 years ago, “We have no use for cities.” They preferred to convert the state into a big cornfield and have accomplished just what they started out to accomplish.

The people made a mistake, and some of them realize it, but Governor Cummins and men of his class, still point with pride to the great state of Iowa and its model government.

The city of Des Moines today should have a population of half a million. Cedar Rapids should have the same number, while half a dozen other cities in the state should use half a dozen figures in recording population.

What's the matter with these cities which are practically at a standstill? They were killed years ago by granger legislation. Notice was served on the railroads that they could not do business in the state except on the distance tariff basis, and this was the death knell to all manufacturing industries.

When the law went into effect the city of Marshalltown with half a dozen growing industries, abandoned the field, and within 30 days 130 carloads of machinery were shipped out of the state and the factories permanently closed.

These conditions existed throughout the state and the city of Milwaukee for the past 20 years has manufactured more goods than the entire state of Iowa.

That's what's the matter with Iowa. It takes people to make a city and it requires industries to support the people.

Iowa through foolish and fanatical legislation has sacrificed more than population, for the cities of a state make the home market which is the best market in the world.

The people of Wisconsin have been advised to adopt the policy of Iowa in dealing with the railroads of the state, and many people have been carried away with the idea. There is only one outcome to this policy, and Iowa presents the object lesson which experience has wrought out.

The manufacturers and the railroads, working together, have brought to Wisconsin development and prosperity in rare degree. The man who willfully or ignorantly attempts to pull down the structure is an enemy to the commonwealth, and should be so regarded.

If the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road care anything about the Geneva Lake trade either from Chicago or the west, the company should make some arrangements for connection with the Interurban line at Walworth. Passengers are compelled to wait from one to three hours and the delay could be remedied without inconvenience to the electric road.

A photographer in California sent out an agent with coupons good for two cabinet pictures. The agent sold the coupons for 50c and was permitted to retain the money. It was thought to be a good advertising scheme but resulted in flooding the gallery with orders for two pictures, and now the concern is bankrupt.

The tariff tinkers convention recently held in Chicago, is in keeping with the restlessness of the age. There are plenty of people who have not yet learned to let well enough alone.

Mr. Dalrymple, the Glasgow guest of Mayor Dunne of Chicago, has made a report of his opinion of municipal ownership in America, but the report is kept under lock and key by the mayor. It is evidently not favorable, but Dunne proposes to carry out his policy regardless of consequences.

The eclipse of the moon was a dismal failure. The program was probably carried out on scheduled time behind the clouds.

The wicked railroad pass is no longer in evidence and the reformer is happy.

PRESS COMMENT.

Marquette Eagle-Star: Janesville teachers will discuss the question, “Shall the teacher have a beau?” This is not an open question in Marquette.

Madison Journal: Watertown has a true patriotic editor. He has returned his newspaper mileage in order that he may hold his office as commissioner of noxious weeds.

Chicago Record-Herald: Somebody has been trying to send an infernal machine to La Follette. Mr. Rockefeller will no doubt find it easy to prove an alibi.

Evening Wisconsin: Oshkosh has a shovel-nosed winner in the Glympse and she ought to feel proud, because the yacht has been doing her work in real racing weather.

Pont du Lac Bulletin: It is only the silver-striped mosquito that carries the yellow fever. Before you let a mosquito bite you, be sure to carefully examine the stripes on his body.

Chilton Times: The Wisconsin democracy nominated Bryan for president in '08 and forthwith that gentleman announces a tour of the globe. He must feel safe in the hands of his friends.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Life insurance premiums come due with just the same aggravating regularity and frequency they did before they started all this talk of reforming the companies.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Col. Watterson says “Elihu Root is the ablest man who has appeared in American politics for twenty-five years.” That dictum may come in handy for parallel column quotation purposes in 1908.

Superior Telegram: It seems that Norway doesn't want a republic, but is industriously looking around among the royal rubbish of Europe for something to install on the throne of supreme authority. That is somewhat disappointing.

El Paso Herald: To the Rochester Advertiser it looks rather small for a man with as many millions as Senator Clark to be chewing gum instead of plug tobacco. But perhaps it is such economy that gave him his millions.

Green Bay Gazette: The announcement comes from Oyster Bay that President Roosevelt has not definitely decided to call a special session of congress this fall. This may give Governor La Follette a little more time for lecturing than he has been figuring on.

Milwaukee Daily News: When an automobile is found running faster than five miles an hour in the Fort Sheridan reservation, the soldiers have orders to shoot the tires full of holes. Singularly enough, none of the automobile drivers have been curious to see if the regulars could hit the mark.

Madison Democrat: An old soldier philosopher of Madison objects to the census figures of the city before they are announced. He complains that hundreds of students were enumerated, who in fact do not reside here. Huh, the major should retreat and prostrate himself in a trench.

Rockford Register-Gazette: The Sheboygan street railway company is trying a new experiment in humanitarianism by offering a carry any mother free who boards a car with a baby not over two years of age in her arms, the baby itself being the street car pass. This ought to help a little in putting a stop to race suicide in Sheboygan.

Milwaukee Free Press: Japan's blue book, just out, gives the empire 50,000,000 population. Japan can put another army or so into the field if it is needed. It has had but about 900,000 men under arms so far. Its population is greater by 12,000,000 than that of north and south at the time of our civil war, and we were able to enlist about 3,000,000 men, first and last, on both sides.

Racine Journal: A Methodist pastor says that it is wrong for a divine of that denomination to make his congregation laugh. It makes a great difference what the remark is that causes the smiles. A good laugh in church at a remark not irreverent can do no harm. The day of the long faced Christian is passed. There are enough tears, woe and misery in the world now. If a preacher has a witty remark, let him utter it. He will be liked all the better by his congregation and have a greater influence for good.

La Crosse Leader-Press: It is the privilege of Mr. Powell of course to stand on his rights to oppose by every legitimate means in his power the movement to force him out of office under a cloud. Should he do so, however, the council, having gone so far, cannot do otherwise than to follow out his program calling for a full investigation of the engineering department and such investigation of the private career of its chief as will throw light on the propriety of his remaining a city officer. Nothing was said in the preliminary resolution of Mr. Powell's personal record, but that part of it which has been revealed by proceedings in a civil action recently instituted by himself undoubtedly had an influence on the minds of the alderman who passed the resolution.

HOW THE DRUGGISTS MAY SELL LIQUOR

Less Than a Gallon May Be Sold for Medicinal Purposes—Not To Be Used on Premises.

Copies of the new legislation affecting pharmacists have been received by several of the Janesville drug-store men. The act to amend Section 1448a of the Statutes of 1898, relating to the sale of the sale of intoxicating liquors, approved on June 12, 1905, has heretofore escaped the notice of many. While it provides that a town or village board or common council may grant to a registered pharmacist, the right to sell strong, spirituous, and ardent liquors for medicinal, scientific, or mechanical purposes, it limits the quantity sold to any one time to less than one gallon and stipulates that it shall not be drunk on the premises. In towns and cities where the license for the sale of intoxicating liquors as beverages is not granted, the buyer must file a certificate duly witnessed and sworn to or a physician's prescription, declaring for what purpose the liquor is to be used. These certificates and prescriptions must be filed and preserved and considered public record at all times and at the end of the month placed in the hands of the city or village clerk. It is further stated that “it shall be the duty of every pharmacist to keep a book in which he shall enter the date, kind and quantity of every sale of any such liquor made by him, the name of the person to whom it was sold, and the purpose for which the sale was made. Every such pharmacist shall on the third Tuesday in April of each year file with the clerk of the town, village or city in which he does business, a verified copy of all the entries in such book. Any person who shall make any false certificate, statement or representation to any physician to secure a prescription for such liquor or to a registered pharmacist, or to any of his clerks or employees, for the purpose of inducing either of them to sell any liquor for use for any other than medicinal or mechanical or scientific purposes, and shall thereby secure such prescription, and a sale thereof to be made in violation of law, and any such pharmacist who shall refuse or neglect to comply with any of the requirements of this section, shall be punished by a fine of not less than forty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, besides the cost of suit, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than eight months. If any pharmacist shall be convicted of violating any of the provisions of this chapter, the court in rendering judgment for such conviction may make an order cancelling and annulling defendant's permit and also his certificate as a registered pharmacist, if any, or the permit and said certificate to the person, firm or corporation, or any member thereof, for whom he is acting or by whom he is employed, if such offense be committed with his own knowledge or consent; and may also direct the abatement and closing of his or their place of business as a nuisance for not less than three months nor more than one year; and in case of a second or any subsequent conviction within one year after any other conviction, the court shall make such orders and during such time no permit or certificate shall be issued to the defendant, or the person, firm or corporation whose permit or certificate was canceled, or to any other person, firm or corporation for carrying on such business at such place.

MAY INVESTIGATE EDDIE FAY'S JUMP

ESCAPE OF OTHER FEDERAL PRISONERS REVIVES SUSPICIONS.

THE REPORTS FROM CHICAGO

Say That the United States Government Will Now Make Careful Inspection.

With the escape of Earl Trainor and Andrew Cunningham from the La Crosse jail, the escape of Flaherty from the Dane County jail and Eddie Fay from the jail in this city are again being discussed. Fay, Dennis, Flaherty, Cunningham and Trainor all belonged to a famous gang of post-office safe-blowers. With the escape of the latter two from La Crosse within the past few days of Fay a year ago on August 25 or 26th, between daylight and dawn, and of Flaherty earlier in the summer from the Dane County jail, will be investigated by the United States authorities. Of the whole gang only Dennis has been convicted and is now in Ft. Leavenworth prison serving his term. Dispatches from Chicago announce that federal officers will now make a thorough investigation of the four escapes and intimates that far more than a mysterious woman figures in the case.

Fay's Escape
The escape of Eddie Fay from the jail here last August is still remembered. Fay had been brought here from Dane County jail for safe keeping owing to the fact his partner, Flaherty, had saved his way out of that structure and escaped. He was locked in the cage on the second floor of the jail and sometime during the night of August 25th and 26th made his escape. From the appearance of his cell room outside air was used. The big door of the cage was sprung open and a hole sawed in the bars that guarded the windows. Spreaders were then used and a place large enough to allow a good sized man to get through made. The tools used were left in the cell and Fay disappeared. Search has been made in Chicago, New York and other cities, but thus far he has never been located. While in jail here he was seen only by his attorney, McKim Seaman of Chicago, and Thomas Ryan, also of Chicago.

Desperate Men
Fay, Dennis and Flaherty were wanted for the robbery of the Superior postoffice in October of 1933. Fay escaped from the officers who sought to arrest him on a train between Hawthorne and Ishpeming, Michigan, when Dennis and Flaherty were captured. Dennis was convicted of the crime and sent to Ft. Leavenworth prison and Flaherty escaped from the Dane County jail. Fay was arrested in Chicago and taken to Madison, where he was placed in jail. After Flaherty's escape he was removed here upon request of the United States authorities. There was some talk of an official investigation of Fay's escape at the time he took French leave, but the matter was dropped. With the escape of the other two men from La Crosse this claim has been revived and it is now claimed that a Chicago woman has instigated all of the escapes thus far made of members of the gang.

BRIEF BITS OF LOCAL NEWS
In Justice Court: In Justice Reeder's court today a judgment of $9.95 and costs was handed down in the action of J. M. Boswick & Sons vs. Philip Marskie, brought to recover for merchandise purchased but not paid for.

Auto Goes Too Slow: Clarence Beers has purchased the electric automobile formerly owned by Dr. W. H. Palmer. It is possible that a measure may be introduced in the council chamber to fix the minimum rate at which a machine may run. Farmers on Milton avenue last evening complained that the one in question traveled so slow that they were obliged to pass it with their teams and that as a result their horses took fright at the bright lights on the horseless carriage.

Chicago Party Here: A. C. Bartlett of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., Chicago, and a party consisting of Mrs. Florence T. Bartlett, E. A. Goodman, Mrs. M. B. Cairn and F. W. Peers, arrived in Janesville aboard a touring car this morning.

Given Five Days: E. S. Smith of Avon was brought into municipal court this morning and sentenced to five days in jail and a fine of $2 and costs or five additional days for drunkenness.

McLeod Won the Match: Freddie McLeod of Rockford won first prize, $125, in the two days' invitation golf tournament for professionals which concluded on the Riverside links yesterday, winning after the play-off of a triple tie for first place with Robert Simpson of the home club and Lawrence Auchterlonie of Glen View. Auchterlonie was so flustered that on the third green in the play-off he picked up his ball after failing to make a short put.

DIED AFTER A FEW HOURS' ILLNESS

Mrs. Ray Smith Suddenly Claimed by Death at Six Thirty O'clock This Morning.

Mrs. Ray Smith died very unexpectedly this morning at half-past six o'clock at her home on South High street. She was taken suddenly ill about midnight and Doctors Penber and Farnsworth called but all their efforts to save her life were in vain and she breathed her last after six hours of suffering. Mrs. Smith was twenty-five years of age and leaves to mourn her loss a husband, three children, father and mother—Mr. and Mrs. James Welch, who up till a few years ago lived in Janesville, but now reside in Milwaukee, and two sisters, Mrs. Ed Hemminger and Mrs. Joseph Scholler, both of this city. Mrs. Smith was very well known and highly respected and the news of her demise will come as a shock to many in Janesville. The notice of the funeral will be given later.

MRS. PETERS IS NOT TO BE PROSECUTED

Tracy Family After Recovering Stolen Property Refuse to Sign Any Complaint.

Several weeks ago Mrs. James Tracy, who resides on Locust street, went to Fond du Lac to visit relatives. On her return she found that table linen, towels, bed spreads, and curtains to the value of $12 or $15 had been taken from the premises. The police were at once informed and started to work on the case. The theft was traced to a Mrs. Peters, who lived in one part of the double house occupied by the Tracys, and indirectly to her sister, Mrs. Waldo. Evidence was secured which showed that the former had taken a part of the stolen property in the country the time but later came back to Janesville. When summoned to the office of the city marshal, Mrs. Peters confessed that she had taken the goods from the Tracys' attic but maintained that she had done so on the supposition that they belonged to an old lady who had gone away and had given her (Mrs. Peters) permission to use them. They were stored away in the attic. She said that part of them might be recovered at the Chinese laundry on South River street, where they had been taken to be washed and ironed. Officer Brown went there and secured them. While being questioned yesterday Mrs. Peters had an attack of heart disease and the officers had a serious time of it. Today the Tracy family, having recovered most of the missing property, refused to sign any complaint against her and the case will probably be dropped. The Peters family came here from Beaver Dam about a year ago. Later they returned to the north, remaining there about four months. When they again returned to Janesville they took up their residence on Locust street. A short time ago they moved into a house on North Bluff street.

WILL CELEBRATE IN A ROYAL MANNER

Janesville Is to Have a Labor Day That Will Be a Red Letter Day in Future.

Janesville labor unions are to have a celebration on September 4th, Labor Day, that will eclipse any previous effort of its kind ever held in the city. There will be a grand parade in the morning followed by a speech by Chas. Breckan of Chicago, a noted labor leader. There are to be numerous free street entertainments and music by two bands. Taking it all in all there will be a great celebration with lots of fun for all.

VAN HOUTER LAUNCH AFIRE IN MID-RIVER

Passengers Had a Narrow Escape Late Yesterday Afternoon—Supply Pipe Blew Up.

Fifteen gallons of gasoline were scattered over Bert Van Houter's launch by an explosion in the supply pipe leading from the tank to the engine while the craft was in mid-river some distance above the gas-house, between the hours of four and five yesterday afternoon. The liberated fuel immediately took fire and the forward portion of the boat was in a sheet of flames in an instant. Mr. Van Houter had as passengers his wife and Mrs. Lawrence. Admonishing them to be calm he put for the shore, beaching the boat just in time to save himself and the ladies from a scorching. An alarm was sent in to the fire department. When the men arrived the launch had drifted out into the river again. A stream was thrown into the boat but this failed to extinguish the flames. Finally some of the men plunged into the river and swimming to the craft, succeeded in tipping and sinking her. It is thought that the damage will not be large. The passengers, however, had a bad scare.

PRAIRIE CHICKENS ARE WELL PROTECTED

Can Not Be Shot in Rock County Until Nineteen Hundred and Ten.

Janesville hunters who had anticipated an opportunity of spending a few days among the prairie chickens of the surrounding country are much disappointed at finding the state game laws forbid this privilege until nineteen hundred and ten. Those who have already laid in their stock of ammunition, will have to use it for some other purpose or keep it in storage for several years. The little article that forbids this slaughter of upland game birds is found in section 112 of the game laws. It is as follows: "Upland game birds. Closed season. Chapter 449, laws of 1909. Sec. 1. It shall be unlawful and is hereby prohibited to take, catch, kill, hunt or pursue any woodcock, partridge, pheasant, or grouse of any variety, plover or snipe, between the first day of December and the succeeding first day of September, or any prairie chicken or prairie hen between the fifteenth day of October and the succeeding first day of September. In any of the following named counties, to-wit: Adams, Barron, Burnett, Bayfield, Buffalo, Clark, Crawford, Douglas, Dunn, Eau Claire, Jackson, Janesville, Marquette, Monroe, Pepin, Polk, Portage, Richland, Sawyer, Vernon, Washburn, Waushara and Wood. Or any prairie chicken or prairie hen in the counties of Marinette or Oconto or either of them before September first A. D., 1907, etc., or any prairie chicken or prairie hen in any other county than those hereinbefore enumerated before the first day of September, 1910." This means that no prairie chicken or prairie hen can be killed in Rock county until 1910.

SEEING IS BELIEVING.

The Wadsworth Bros' Chico Is a Long Havana Filler, Says The Smith Drug Co. and They Can Prove It.

When a cigar salesman told Mr. Ed. Smith of the Smith Drug Company that it was not possible to sell a long Havana filler, such as they claim the Wadsworth Bros' Chico is, for 5c. The reply was: "Well, it is an easy thing to see whether it can be done or not," and he took a Chico from its box and cut it open. The filler was there—long, rich, silky Havana—just what was needed to make the good smoke that the Chico is. Seeing is believing, but with the Chico, smoking is better. Try one and see for yourself, all lovers of a good smoke, how fine a cigar can be sold for 5c. The best people in Janesville, those who never used to smoke anything less than a 10c cigar, now buy the Chico at the Smith Drug Company for a nickel, and get a better smoke for less money.

CHAPTER XIX.

NEXT day the three were not as early beginning their march, because Northampton was barely fifty miles distant and the day was longer than the day. The good land of the Angel, bustling and lively, saw them off with many blessings and wishes that God would speed them. Stamford furnished but for their horses and a short rest for themselves. Then they took the detouring road for Northampton, and their pack horses limped and their progress was slow. Frances was in better spirits than was the case since the pilgrimage began, for she had now persuaded her mind, which eagerly wished to be convinced, that her future action would save the lives of two men—Armstrong's not less than her brother's—and so she had come to look upon her unsuspecting companion as her benefactor rather than her victim.

The day passed pleasantly enough, even if progress was slow. Armstrong related many interesting or amusing anecdotes of the border, and the girl came to the conclusion that life must be anything but dull in that hilly district. They passed the first night in a hospitable farmhouse, for there were few and mostly unattended. They learned that it would probably be dark by the time they reached Northampton, but there was a new moon to light their way. They were off the main line of travel and had the road practically to themselves. At about 5 in the afternoon they heard the tramping of a squadron behind them, coming on at a rapid walk. Armstrong not cross swords, we'll run a race, and may the best man win. But I feel strangely uncomfortable about the neck."

He raised his chin and moved his head from side to side, as if the rope already throttled him. Then he laughed, and she gazed at him in fascinated terror.

"That man is likely to defeat me," he continued. "His plans are all laid, and already I feel the coils tightening around me. I am satisfied he knows every move I have made since I left him. The unseen spy is on my track, and, by my sword, I'd rather circumvent him than rule the kingdom. Well, winner's your wife? Now's the time you need them, my lad. In the first place, I dare not go through Northampton. That's clear."

"Why?"

"In my soul I'm certain a crisis awaits me there. I'll be nabbed in Northampton. Then the question, 'Why did you refuse a pass to Oxford?'"

"Did he offer you one?"

"Yes. The next question will be, 'Why are you south of the limit set by yourself, traveling to Oxford on another's pass?' To that query there's no answer. I'm a self-confessed spy, and then the scaffold, according to all the rules of war."

"Pardon me if I do not follow your argument. If he has tracked you, as you think, there is no more reason he should stop you at Northampton than at Newark or Grantham. Aside from that, why did he not hold you when he had you?"

"Oh, I had not put my neck into the

tion that she might have opportunity of meditating on some argument that would retain him by her side. If he left her, she was resolved to seek out Cromwell at Northampton, tell him of her brother's disaster and explain her own effort to make good his absence. When Cromwell was convinced that both her brother and herself had faithfully endeavored to carry out the commander's wishes he might then heed her pleading that sentence be annulled, or at least suspended, until the boy had another chance of proving his loyalty to his party. Her meditations were interrupted by Armstrong suddenly drawing in his horse and standing up in his stirrups. She also stopped and looked inquiringly at him. A high hedge bordered the road, and he was endeavoring to peer beyond it.

"What is it?" she asked.

"I thought I caught a glimpse of a helmet over yonder."

They went on at a walk and shortly after passed a road that crossed their own. Up this crossroad to the north two troopers sat on their horses; down the road to the south were two others. As Armstrong and his companion continued west the four troopers came out of their concealment and followed them.

of berries were thrown away and a tremendous loss was incurred. Under his contracts with the railroads the car company was responsible for a large portion of the loss and in a few days its agents were at work settling the claims. Probably a hundred thousand dollars was disbursed on this account, and that went into "profit and loss."

Growers Miscalculated. And now comes the Georgia peach crop, the handling of which has just been completed. Last year the crop was estimated at four thousand carloads and arrangements were made to supply cars and ice accordingly. Almost at the height of the shipments it was discovered the crop would run five thousand carloads and the additional cars had to be provided instantaneously, together with several thousand tons of ice.

Ice Market Overstocked. Nor does this appear to be all. My information is that anticipating another enormous crop much ice was manufactured and stored for the company during the winter and spring. An ice plant at Jacksonville, Florida, and several in North Carolina, broke down. A call was made on Georgia ice factories and Macdon furnished three thousand tons of ice for Florida cantanaples. The company expected the Florida factory would be in operation in time to repay the loan before the Georgia peach crop movement. But the plant was not ready in time and to complicate matters several smaller plants in Georgia broke down, with the result that once more thousands of tons of ice had to be rushed from Lake Erie. This time, however, there were no peaches to be iced for by the time the shipments of ice got well under way it developed there was only half a crop, and the shipments of peaches stopped. The ice market of Georgia is therefore overstocked and the Armour car lines have ice to sell at any old price, for of course it cannot be carried over to next season. While the company was having so much trouble at its initial icing points in Georgia, several plants broke down along the route. Georgia fruit consigned to the east is reiced at Columbia, South Carolina, Hanlet, Wilmington and South Rocky Mount, North Carolina. When the ice at these points ran short shipments were rushed from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Alexandria, Virginia, and the fruit was saved. All this my informant quotes as illustrating the vicissitudes of the business. In some cases, too much ice and too many cars were provided; in others, too little ice and too few cars were available; but in both instances the car company had to stand the losses. It may be a fair question, therefore, if the multiplying of a certain number of tons of ice by an estimated amount of the crop consumed really gives a fair idea of the cost of this service, or should not allowance be made for the hazards of the business?

An Act of Philanthropy. It may be of interest to know what was done with this ice which was thrown upon the market and a gentleman familiar with the situation has contributed some information on the subject. It appears that when the season of shipping Georgia peaches came to an abrupt close the Armour people stopped the cars of ice wherever they could reach them by telephone. Having been unable to send refrigerated cars the ice had been packed in ordinary boxcars and was melting rapidly. To attempt to dispose of such large quantities by dumping it on the local markets would have broken the price, and so the Armour people thought, would work an injury to the local ice dealers. The company was therefore in a quandary as to what to do with the ice other than let it melt away, when the local freight agent at a Tennessee point wired the company suggesting that its ice at his station be given to the poor. Mr. George B. Robbins, president of the company, saw the point and not only repaid placing all the ice at his disposal for this purpose but notified the other freight agents wherever the cars happened to be, to give the ice to charitable institutions and to the poor of their towns. In some cases the ice was handed over to the Salvation Army and in others given away by the freight agents. At Chattanooga alone between two and three hundred tons of ice were distributed and the total amount ran up into the thousands. Counting the freight, the ice was worth, at the points where it was given away, about five dollars a ton, so it is estimated that the distribution cost the Armour company at least ten thousand dollars.

DEVOUR POISON TO CHECK FEVER

Panic-Stricken Persons at New Orleans Go Wild Over New Preventive.

WILL NOT BRING IMMUNITY

Physicians Declare the Consumption of Arsenic Will in No Way Affect the Status of Patients, but Admit No Harm Will Result.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 18.—Thousands of panic-stricken citizens of New Orleans, men, women and children, are daily swallowing arsenic as a preventive for yellow fever. This fact developed in reports on the subject made by inspectors to the government fever bureau.

The inspectors claim that the advent of Dr. R. B. Leach of Minnesota with his arsenical preventive theory is responsible for the craze which is sweeping over the city.

Dr. Leach made an address in the St. Charles hotel on his theory. He is disappointed at the failure of the medical fraternity to co-operate with him in his experiments, and accuses the profession of jealousy.

The doctors here are practically a unit in the opinion that arsenication will render no one immune, holding that the theory is not new, that it has been tried and that it has been unsuccessful.

Meantime, thousands of people here are daily eating poison in small quantities, which the doctors admit can do them no harm, even if it doesn't do them any good.

Another big increase in victims of the fever mosquito is shown by Thursday night's figures given out by Surgeon White of the federal forces. As there were only four deaths for the same time, Dr. White is not alarmed.

He contends that the sting of the scourge bearing insect is being successfully treated, and that the figures prove it. The following are the official figures given out Thursday night:

New cases, 77; total to date, 1,223; deaths, 4; total deaths to date, 192; new subfebrile, 14; total subfebrile to date, 262; number of cases under treatment, 427.

Many Stricken at Leesville. The most important news outside of the city came from Lafourche parish, where the parish health officer, Dr. Stark, reports widespread infection in the Leesville settlement at the mouth of Bayou La Fourche. He says there are probably 100 cases of sickness there, and he saw about one-third of them. He diagnosed six as yellow fever, and classes the others as dengue, a mild type of yellow fever or dengue.

A dispatch from Gulfport says that there are four new cases at Mississippi City, making fourteen now under treatment. One of the patients is in a critical condition.

The mayor of Gulfport has appointed four physicians to make a house to house canvass of that town.

To Invade All Homes. The city council has authorized the mayor to borrow $60,000 from the local fiscal agents, to be applied to the fund at the disposal of the marine hospital service. Any other ordinance passed empowers all sanitary officers to enter houses for fumigation purposes with or without the consent of the property holders or tenants.

A spirited election was decided at Mandeville in a unique manner. The anti-quarantine ticket was elected by a big majority, and now the town is open to all fever refugees.

The doctors here are not ready to admit that infection at Mississippi City, the fashionable summer resort, where twelve cases were discovered, is traceable to New Orleans. It has been the custom since the discovery of the fever to charge all infection appearing elsewhere to this city.

'BIG HEARTED JIM' PLEASED AUDIENCE

George Klint in the Title Role, Played Upon Sympathies of Auditors—Villain Was Hissed.

Two wild-western-frontier melodramas in one week may be "heap strong medicine" but the good sized audience at the Myers last evening thoroughly enjoyed "Big Hearted Jim" with George Klint in the title role. Once or twice during the stirring action of the play a voice rang out from the gallery denouncing "Pierre De Lastrange"—the Canadian described in the printed synopsis and cast of characters as "half Indian, half French, and all dog." Which shows that J. Neil McLeod succeeded admirably in his portrayal of the wolfish character. H. P. Coffin as the wicked "Francis Haddley" was rewarded with similar cordiality. George Klint was the big, warm-hearted, self-colloquial "Jim Saxon," sheriff of Medicine Lodge, and the scenes of his supposedly hopeless courtship of "Dora Carlyle" strangely moved the onlookers, some of whom were in tears. In the stirring episode of Act III where the sheriff puts out the lamp with a revolver shot in order to aid the escape of his supposed rival in love from a group of excited and angry men, the cartridges hung fire and an exciting climax was nearly ruined. However, the lamp knew its business and went out anyway, and the audience accepted the click of the hammer in lieu of the shot in good faith, forgetting to giggle. May-belle Moore was good in the leading woman's part and the same may be said of Jessie Stevens as "Liddy," Asnos Hart as "Triska," the Indian girl, and Donna Sol as "Bess." Harry Garrity's delineation of "Lin," the northern facetious, was excellent. The scenery was very fine indeed. "Men of Yost," a new composition dedicated to the University of Michigan football team and its coach, was the opening number played by Prof. Lake and his orchestra.

Bismarck's Love for Explorer.
Prince Bismarck had the greatest affection for the late Maj. von Wissman. When he left for East Africa as commander of the German Schutztruppe to suppress the insurrection of the Chief Bushiri, the chancellor took his chubby face in both hands and kissed him.

American Accent in English.
Not only the nasal sounds, but many American phrases are quite common in Suffolk, England, among the farmers and the peasantry, and a stranger passing an afternoon in Woodbridge market might fancy himself in Massachusetts.

The Meekest Dons His Share.
In knocking up and down the world I've found that, as a rule, there's a mighty lot of kicking in the meekest-looking mule.

CITY OF PLEASURE

JOYOUS MOVEMENT OF LIFE IN GAY PARIS.

Scenes in the Much-Written-Of Latin Quarter—Sorbonne the Center of Student Life—Boulevard Crowds Worthy of Study.

(Special Correspondence.)

There are, as it were, ever so many cities united in Paris, the cities of pleasure, work, art and beauty, but taken as a whole, it is above all the city of the living. City of the living, because there people have the joie de vivre and "Live and let live" is the golden rule.

Paris is overflowing with life; there does not seem to be a spot one might call "dead." The boulevards, of course are always crowded; the continuous chain of pedestrians is there both day and night. In the morning it is the throng of wage-earners, the school boys in black aprons and leather belts, the ouvrieres without hats, the plodding workman in his blue blouse hurrying past. But it is not the worried, pushing crowd of an American city; it is a bright and happy crowd, full of the joy of living and bent on doing its work in the most cheerful manner possible.

Later on in the day it is the people of leisure who sit down in a cafe for some time and in the evening it is the theatergoers, the seekers of amusement, who fill the lighted boulevards and the Rue Royale.

The Latin Quarter.

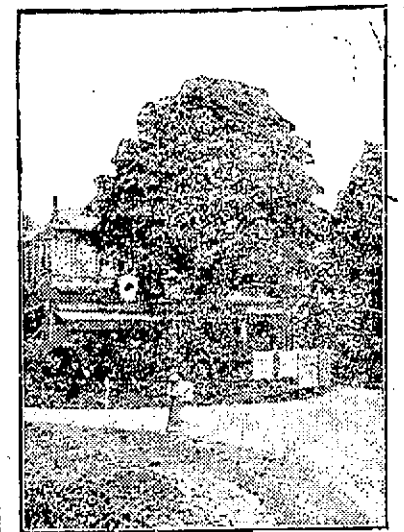

So much has been written about the Latin quarter that it seems purely folly to mention it again, but nevertheless it must be said that it is one of the most interesting parts of Paris. There is such a potpourri of all elements—religious and atheistic—idleness and pleasure and hard work. There are ever so many churches in the quarter; it seems to swarm with them. The prettiest, without doubt, is the St. Etienne du Mont, but one of the most interesting is probably the Eglise de la Sorbonne. It is closely connected with the university and may be regarded as the students' church. The walls are almost entirely covered with slabs expressing thanks to the Virgin for having granted good examinations. The Latin quarter has its share of convents also; there is one in almost every street. On the other hand, it is full of atheists, nihilists and anarchists. They have their meeting places all over it, too, although one does not discern them very easily. And certainly the numerous schools, libraries and museums prove it to be one of work, while the numberless cafes prove that it is also one of pleasure.

The most amusing thing about the Quarter, perhaps, is to watch all the odd characters. Last summer was an unusually hot one, and people turned out in the evening even more than they habitually do, and so from the terrace of some cafe one had a remarkably good opportunity to study the types. There was one man who went about in a white corduroy suit, without stockings, wearing only very low sandals. He had a big, sloeving hat and long, corkerew curls. The latter did not seem to be natural, but looked rather like the result of several hours of hard work with a curling iron or some other instrument.

Another man had gray hair falling over his shoulders and a long, white beard. He wore a funny stovepipe hat, and a Kate Greenaway suit, and he had a big alarm clock fastened to his vest. Sometimes he would sell postal cards, but very often he would walk up and down the Boulevard Mich' for the sake of showing off, and incidentally to gain a few sous by begging. I do not know whether he was rich or poor; one never can tell. I saw "Bibi-la-Purée," who was somewhat like this man, sell newspapers and matches, but never thought anything about him, until I read about him in the papers. He had once been well off, but at last he was found in the streets dying from starvation.

The Sorbonne and the Students.
The Sorbonne is the center of the students' life and, of course, a great many anecdotes could be told about

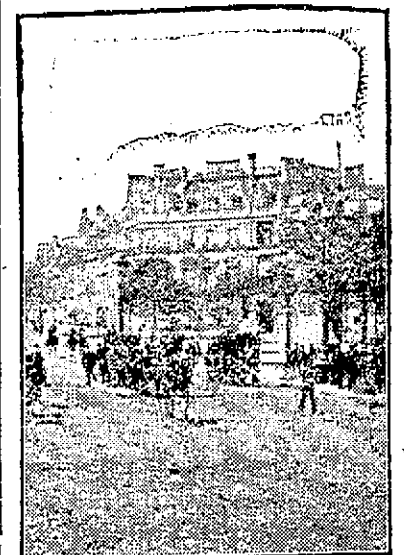

Typical Cafe Concert.

it. Being a very old institution—founded by Richelieu in 1625—it has kept up a good many of the ancient customs. When a person passed an examination at the Sorbonne long ago the examiners were supposed to wear robes, and to repay them for their trouble and expense, each candidate had to pay two francs "comme droits de robe." The Sorbonne has now been modernized and the professors no longer appear in robes, but still the candidates have to pay their fee. An amusing incident is told about a rather impertinent boy who went up for his B. A. there. The time for the oral examinations had come and one of the professors asked the boy a question. He received no answer. The professor questioned him again, but to the same result. Finally, the boy was asked what he was waiting for. He answered pertly: "I am waiting for you to put your robe on. Until then I refuse to answer." The professor looked at him haughtily and said, pointing to the door: "There is always plenty of room outside, my boy."

The Sorbonne is entirely free. One does not have to pay a cent to hear the very best lectures given by the greatest celebrities. Although a great many well-to-do people listen to conferences at the sorbonne it is only when the American professor lectures that wealth pours in. Then all the automobiles and fine carriages appear; the Rue de la Sorbonne and the Rue des Ecoles are filled by the numerous equipages. One wonders why Americans always go to hear lectures about America, but probably it is on account of their patriotic feeling.

Joys of the Cafe.
A great comfort in Paris is that one can sit outside a cafe and watch people pass. One does not have to walk all the time like as over here; you can sit calmly down and watch other people pass. And that is a very great comfort, particularly on a hot day. Although the French do not believe in keeping Sunday as a holiday, still they believe in utilizing every occasion offered them by the church fests to make merry on, such as Mardi-Gras, Mi-Careme, l'Assomption, without counting the fetes at St. Cloud, Neuilly and St. Germain. During the fetes the streets are filled with booths where pain d'epice is sold and where different games are played.

On the Boulevard.

Women go to tea rooms about as men go to cafes. There are several very fashionable ones, most of them near the Rue de Rivoli, and others in the best hotels. Every afternoon there is a long row of carriages outside, while the inside is filled with women dressed in charming gowns.

Much might be said about Paris as a whole. Vauban said: "This city is to France what the head is to the human body." It is the real heart of the country, the mother of France, by which all the races of the great state subsist and of which the country could never be deprived without degenerating considerably.

And really, when one thinks of all Paris has passed through—of the revolution, the commune, and all the wars—one must believe as the motto says: "Fluctuat nec mergitur." And one feels that a country with a capital like Paris can never die, for such a city is like a universal capital of ideas.

Menelik's Prize Town.
Prof. Rosen, a member of the German mission to Abyssinia, writes:

"The population of Addis-Abeba, which the Emperor Menelik has established on four narrow hills, is estimated at 80,000, but is probably much higher. Not more than about 1,000 of the inhabitants live in houses; all the rest use tents or huts, which are quickly and easily erected at any point that may be chosen.

As the groups of tents are generally surrounded by open grass land, and three deep, rocky gorges intersect the town, the whole has more the appearance of an improvised camp.

Indolent men sit by the thousands in front of their dirty huts and lazily watch the grazing mules; women, in dirty, flowing garments, wearily carry water from the muddy brook in heavy jars up the steep path leading from the bottom of the ravine. There are hardly a dozen shops; there is only one small inn.

"What strikes us as most wonderful and most inconvenient is the lack of any system of coinage; small amounts are paid with cartridges or sticks of rock salt.

A Long Interest Term Ahead.
The Hon. Francis Baylies, a historian of note, on returning from meeting one Thanksgiving day, met Nicholas Tillinghast, one of the most humorous and eloquent of the members of the Bristol (Mass.) county bar, in the sitting room of Atwood's hotel.

In the course of the conversation which ensued, Mr. Baylies said to Mr. Tillinghast: "I have deposited a 10-cent piece in the contribution box, to be placed on interest until I reach heaven."

Mr. Tillinghast replied: "Ah, yes! that will amount to a very large sum before you will be admitted there."

More Cars of Steel.
Of the 126,661 freight cars ordered for American railroads last year 65,000 were of steel construction.

Rummage Sale Incident.
A clergyman at Yarmouth, England, who was attending a "rummage sale," that was being held for a charity laid a new straw hat on a stall, and when he turned around to get it a minute or two later found that the energetic stallkeeper had sold it for 4 cents to an unknown purchaser.
